DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

(c) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 21-22, 27-32 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Graber et al.

Regarding claim 21, Graber et al., discloses a chassis with features of the claimed invention consisting of fiber-reinforcing plastic equipped with an integrated sensor (see the title).

Regarding claim 22, Graber et al., shows plurality of sensor (elements 14). Strain gauges always supply electric signal indicative of some sort of stress !

Regarding claims 27-28, Graber et al., discloses a electronic computing means (see figure 1), is capable of storing and analyzing data. The strain values are always proportional to a local loading !

Regarding claims 29-31, the electronic computing means is capable of various data analysis. Furthermore, the way or method of computing, does not contribute to the structure of the apparatus.

Regarding claim 32, all computers generally include all these characteristics!

3. Claims 21-26, 34, 36, 39-40 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Ort.

Regarding claims 21-23, 36, 39, Ort., discloses a method and apparatus for covering a strain gauge with features of the claimed invention including organic composite material and a foil strain gauge embedded in there (col. 2, line 60).

Regarding claim 24, the strain gauge is in the middle of the layers (see figures 1 and 2).

Regarding claims 25-26, 40, the foil strain gauge has measuring grids (not shown) and covered by the insulating layers and the measuring grid is connected to pins which are protrude outward (see figure 3, and col. 3 lines 10-15).

Regarding claim 34, Ort, shows the use of a prescribed mold (element 1 or 10).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claim 33 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Graber et al., in view of Ort.

Graber et al., does not elaborate on the strain gauge connection structure. However, any strain gauge naturally should have some sort of connecting structure. Ort who shows a similar strain gauge configuration teaching the use of connecting pin. It would have been obvious for a skilled artisan at the time of the invention to modify Graber et al, by using Ort teaching to provide for a connecting pins, in order to be able to connect the strain gauge to an evaluating device.

6. Claims 35, 37-38 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

7. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
